> On Foot around Oahu. [CONCLUBED.]

After proparing several foolscap pages descriptree of a visit to Kabuku, the adjutant has reguived orders from bead-quarters to tear them up, as everybody knows perfectly well what Kahuku is, and with what glorious hospitality the name is ever associated.

Suffice it then to say that tents were tabu, and the whole party was billeted out under the many room of this friendly homestead. The "lady of the manor extended to our general a very kind invitation to halt his column for a day, and,-"Capus conquered Hannibal," says the proverb,be balted.

Next day (bismillah! what is like the berry of Mucha-or Koss !) at breaklast mine bost exputiated upon the beauties of some mountain-retreat accessible only to centaurs like himself. He was challenged by one of the young ladies of the house, barself a regular Diana Vernon; the Counters would not be beaten at monutaineering ; and the General attended. They, after much inunerties of horses and girths, departed. Crocost, music and other household athletics carried of the rest, except the consul, who, a boy once more devoted bimself to belping Master Karl set of feetial involvements, the result of flying a hits. The Adjutant, with a good heavy book, lay down to read for about twenty minutes and " "

It was inte in the afternoon, an hour past dinper time, and the whole population, retainers, vassals and all, were anxiously looking out at a little closed of dost far off on the hill-slopes. Genderally this cloud resolved into four dots, which were alternately seen and lost to view as they crossed the undulating plain; and at last with a joval view-halloo from our host and the general, the micra awept past onto the puddock, decidedly realy, after their twenty mile steeple-chase, for the waiting med.

There was a delicious dip in an underground pool, a sort of falty cavern, everbung with maiden-hair fern, and full of dancing reflections, a grotto fit for a naisd's bottle. There was a pleasunt guilbering round the festive tes-table, play and peattle with the winsome little-folk, music and gooip among their seniors; then, as one by one sought rest, wreathing spirals of white smoke brought contemplation to those who were left. At last even the consul's hist quaint Irish melody consed. Stience regued; the lonely watcher thought open pext day's march to the heauted guege of Enliawan, when hush! soft sounded o'er the stilly night, with regular and melodious cadence and gathering force until it resounded like thunder through the welkin-

It was stated next day, and promptly suppressed lest anything should seem at all personal to a gallant officer of our party, that some one had smored very much during the night, awaking farm poultry, psucocks and responsive pigs.)

Now southward ho! "The last saraband had been danced in the ball, the last"-sang somebody, but, as the general appropriately asked, what had walking purues to do with stirrup-cups? Adian selling astoritus, and selleres !

The hill landscape seen from Kahuku termimates towards the south in a rocky bluff a couple of mine areay, projecting like some storm-worm to the sea of grass land below; and at its feet, meeting among palm-trees and shrubbery, is the kale-patch of a very old farmer who probably eaw Vancouver, and who paid homage to the first Expeliansebs. Approaching the bluff, we could see distinctly its overhanging ledges, rock-tombs of many an appent warrior whose funeral tapa still futters mournfully on the breeze as if to claim a passing recollection from their old compenion still surviving among his palm-trees.

Like the indescribable "something" in a restless dream which always shuts from view a looked for ending, the mysterious curtain which still separates the spirit-world from the almost spiritual gaze of a sleeping soul, the great black bluff hid from our kee all beyond.

Theo came the unveiling. As we rounded the bluff, far over sand-hills and sea shone the great southern peaks, radiant in morning snulight, their bends lost in dewy cloud, and their bases sinking to the open haze only to re-appear at intervals in the out-stretching has of rocky islets which surrounded Kaneolie bay. Before as lay our road for four days to come, so we trudged away over the hot sand towards Malaekahana, with the best foot foremost. Gaining a small isolated thurset of hap-less, all were attracted by the sight of a glistening pool of water on the plain to our left, in which a berd of cattle stood coolly mibbling at the tofts of grass growing along its sign. It was just a miniature of the great Egyptian lake whose waste area had been converted into fertile fields by the gigantic drainage system of early civilization, but into which a warring invader had again turned the sea: our riolis, this still sea. But, bey presto! where is it! The thing had gone, and the cattle remained, but exting dry herbage! A few retraced steps brought back the lake, and then we thought upon the unhappy travelers over African wastes, whose goal of water and shade-trees and welcoming roots vanished as with tollsome footsteps they were approached. The mirage was complete, and we were sold. What the cattle think of it, we had no means of ascertaining; but the illusion is probubly always there in hot weather.

Mile after mile was traversed; craggy Malaekaham and fertile Laie were passed on our right towards the new beightening mountains, in which ahead we began to descry the gorge of Kuliuwaa, and the first land became so much currower that sver and anon could be heard the thunder of the surf. Not until reaching a point immediately opposite Kaligwas did we obtain any view of its deep recesses, with a silver streak of cascade in their gisomy depth; but as we crossed the intervening flat to gain the valley-mouth a very impreserve scene lay before us. The mountains were lofty and steep, and the stream of which we asw one tumbling cascade far up aloft now flowed gently at our feet, hardly above sea level. Guided by a pretty little boy, the son of a neighboring resident who had bospitably provided as a pleasant evening was passed with our kind host and bostess, and after the ladies had retired a powith fresh dairy-produce, we found a patch of gram about a mile up the gorge, where the tents might be pitched without risk of being washed away by any andden freshet in the night. Towering above us on either hand were steep ridges. growings and outlandish in profile, which with waning day threw strange shadows over the bol- day The whole party arrived safely, and nome-department of two good-natured makes were dropped. Pele, to their aid. Pele planted natives upon each overhanging ridge as sentries, while the rest formed a cordon at the mouth of the valley. One man up there saw Kamapuna sleeping down below, upon a rock which still bears the reputed mark of his brawny shoulders, and shouted out to the others, "there he is!" Whereupon the sleeper awake, saw the man on the ridge, turned bim into stone, and fled higher up the stream, the company of men under Pele's guidance following him. Approaching the impassable water-gorge. From these mountains he jumped over to Diamond Head, and in revenge threw water into the crater until it was extinguished. Pele

That night a heavy shower of rain occurred, and after breakfast next day we with our friends the two natives followed the bed of the stream towards the cascade. The valley became a chasm, so narrow that hundreds of feet above it might easily be bridged by a stone-throw, at least so it seemed; and the stream was margined with trees and coppice; at intervals small pieces of earth, of the place that we rendily understood the suits being blown away, as a recognition of some mysterious influence in the valley. We waded on for a mile through the stream, passed the singular semi-cylindrical water-shoot, several hundred feet in height, where Kamapuan elbowed himself up, and finally stood on the edge of a deep pool, into which the cascade fell from a considerable height. Here the general dived, to the alarm of Keoni, who probably expected never to see him re-emerge; but he came up spluttering and almost blue with cold, whereupon Keoni shook off his dread and bathed also. And here was found a delicate, pellucid little plant in search ed them, and in the afternoon left this romantic rashness of this kind, the Countess kindly led the way. Man and horse followed, but only to find the wide dale of Kahana. How different it was from anything we had yet seen! From its head, among the highest mountains of Oahu, to the sea, a goodly river meandered among marshes and guava-thickets and rice fields, and the hills surrounding it were completely "clothed" in woodland. The only comparison that anyone of our party could make was to the effect that Ka-hana was a Hawaiian vale of Clwyd or of Con-ing into the valley, obscuring everything as it

But we must leave even Kabana, and as we skirt the headland of gigantic cliff which bounds the bay on its southern side, a column of smoke begins to ascend from some bruhala trees high up above, increasing in volume until it must attract observation for many miles along the const. "What's that fire?" we ask of some natives who are hastily dragging out their fishing-nets and repairing broken meshes. "It is the in." they say; some signal-man of the fishing villages from the ing shoal which brings provision and employment to a hundred hardy cance-men. So, rounding the point, we see cances being launched in all direc-

A pleasant greeting awaited us at Kualoa, where the adjutant's watch was at length detect-ed in a long course of misdeeds; it had been running twenty six hours to the day (an unlucky result of some jump or tumble up north) until we had risen at day dawn to find it eight o'clock, and to wonder. There also the most delicious lemonade was prepared by friendly hands from newly gathered limes; and well-refreshed we pushed on past the little churches of Waikane and Waia-hole. (Presbyterian and Roman Catholic, typical

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

THE PUBLIC ARE CAUTIONED AGAINST the unfounded statements frequently made, "that the composition of CHLRODYNE is known to Chemists and the Medical profession." The fact is, Chlorodyne was discovered and invented by Dr. J. Col. Lis Brown E (ex Army Medical Staff), and so named by him, and it has baffled all attempts at analysis by the first Chemists of the day. The method and secret of the preparation have never been published. It is obvious, therefore, that anything sold under the name, save Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE, is a spurious imitation. CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor Chlorodyne. REMEDIAL USES AND ACTION. REMEDIAL USES AND ACTION.

This invaluable remedy produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and alimitates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating, any of these unpleanant results attending the use of opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons tentify to its marvellong good effects and wonderful cares, while medical men extol its virtues must extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—Children, Dysantery, Bliarrhora, Coliex, Comphs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp Hysteria, &c.

ENTRACES FROM MEDICAL OPINIONS.

EXTRACTS FROM MEDICAL OPINIONS. The Right Hon, Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians, and J. T. Davenport, that he had received information to the effect that the outr remedy of any service in Cholers was CHLORODYNE.—See Lenset He. 31, 1884. Br. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE was administered, the patient REOWNE'S CHIORODYNE was animensured, the prescribed by scores of orthodox medical prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."

Extract from the General Beard of Health, Londom, as to its efficacy in Cholera..." So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urgs the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CAUTION....None grantes without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE" on the Government Stamp, Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.
